Molly focuses her practice primarily on environmental, real estate and land use law. Molly works with clients to conduct environmental due diligence, secure insurance coverage for environmental claims, and obtain regulatory closure for contaminated sites. Molly also advises clients on bringing business operations into environmental regulatory compliance, and on the sale and purchase of contaminated properties. Molly also litigates cost recovery actions and a variety of land use claims, including permit appeals.

Molly's environmental experience includes matters involving the Model Toxics Control Act (MTCA), Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation, and Liability Act (CERCLA), Clean Water Act (CWA), Growth Management Act (GMA), National Environmental Policy Act (NEPA), Alaska Native Claims Settlement Act (ANCSA) and Columbia River Treaty. Having also previously served as a judicial law clerk for four judges at the trial court level, she has touched on nearly every type of legal issue that makes its way through the state superior court system.

Before attending law school, Molly worked at the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency's Region 1's Office of the Regional Administrator in Boston, Massachusetts. During law school, Molly interned for the House Committee on Global Warming and Climate Change and for State Senator Katherine Clark at the General Court of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, The Honorable Federal Magistrate Robert B. Collings for the U.S. District Court for the District of Massachusetts, Stoel Rives LLP, The Center for Environmental Law and Policy, and the Office of General Counsel for the Massachusetts Department of Environmental Protection. After completing law school, Molly served as a judicial law clerk to The Honorable Judge Jay B. Roof, Jeanette Dalton, Sally F. Olsen and Jennifer Forbes at Kitsap County Superior Court.
